

START-UP INTERVIEW OVERVIEW

We're going to conduct a five-part course in which you are going to honestly interview yourself about how ready you really are to start a construction business. The areas we will cover include a look inside your head, a look at the business you want to start, a look at how well you know your market, what it is that you are going to be offering to the market, and how well you have thought through the finances of the new enterprise. By the end of the process, and it's a lengthy one, you're going to have a much better idea of how to proceed with your dream.